Dr. Taylor is currently recruiting students to work on her research project in Yucatan, Mexico this summer. The duration of the trip will be four weeks, during which students will participate in GPS mapping with farmers, taking ethnographic fieldnotes at community meetings and other events, and learning the basic tenets of ethnographic fieldwork.

Required Qualifications:

- Intermediate Spanish (conversational)
- Ability to adapt to rustic living arrangements (the field site is a small Maya village)
- Desire to learn by doing

There is no stipend; however, the program covers most travel and living expenses for research assistants. Please contact Dr. Taylor at sarah.r.taylor@wichita.edu or by calling 316-978-7194 as soon as possible. These positions will be filled on a first come first served basis.
