Tips To Financial Literacy Awareness
From The Classroom To The Workforce

Wilma Moore-Black

Associate Director: TRIO Communication Upward Bound (CUB)
PI, Director: College Access Challenge Grant (CACG/CUB)
Wichita State University ~ Room 229 Elliott Hall
October 14, 2013 ~ Financial Literacy Conference ~ Overland Park, KS
The words “financial literacy” are somewhat confusing. I think it’s safe to say there is a universal love for MONEY. Most people are looking for easy money, but they do not know how to save more money, to get the best investment for $$$ and

If you are working with those who plan to go to school and work or just need to finish a high school diploma or returning to school to complete a two year or four year degree of a certificate at a technical school. This session’s intent is to make sure that professionals like us see the need and relevance of financial information in the workforce.
Success in the workplace

Get Hired

Ask For A Raise

The Job Pays All The Bills

Promotion/Advancement
Tips That Work In The Workplace:

◆ Basic: Read and keep informed about how to stay employed.
◆ Be R-T-C: Responsive to Change and Less R-T-C: Resistant to Change.
◆ Keep your resume updated.
◆ Speak up for yourself and get paid what you’re worth.
Tips That Work In The Workplace:

◆ Start your own business – research and get support: emotional and financial. Learn about money management and read/watch consumer alert reports.

◆ Know the difference between being humble ~ arrogant ~ and smart.

◆ Be a visionary. Live for today with plans for a successful tomorrow.
Increasing Financial Literacy Education and Awareness

If America is to widen the awareness of the financial literacy pipeline, the nation must ensure broad participation by all Americans.

– Wilma Moore-Black
Main Objectives For This Session

- To increase your awareness of how there can be a smooth transition from the classroom to the workforce: on-the-job training and education.

- To foster collaborations between participants at this session; to value the meaning of networking and sharing resources that work and can be modified and customized to fit your needs.

- To motivate and inspire you to connect and re-connect with your youth and adult learners about what financial literacy is all about now and for life.
Wilma Moore-Black, PI, Director
College Access Challenge Grant (CACG)/Kansas Board of Regents
229 Elliott Hall, Wichita State University
E-Mail: wilma.black@wichita.edu
316.978.6113

Demetria Wilson, CACG project coordinator
231 Elliott Hall, Wichita State University
Demetria.wilson@wichita.edu
316.978.6731