We are very excited about this year’s KSN Conference which will be held at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in downtown Wichita. Conference sessions will focus on our theme “School Health: Where do all the pieces fit?”

After last year’s conference, we conducted a short survey of past attendees and made some changes to our program based on your response. We will have three very special keynote speakers and more than 23 unique sessions for you to attend. Because many of you said it was hard to get to every session, we are also repeating more of the sessions this year. We hope you will enjoy these updates.

If you have any questions about the conference or the registration process, please contact the WSU Conference Office at 316-978-6493 or conference.office@wichita.edu.

We look forward to seeing you all in July!

Sincerely,
The KSN Conference Planning Committee

KSN Conference General Session Information

Description
“School Health: Where do all the pieces fit?”
School health professionals are in unique positions to affect change in their school population, community and within themselves using knowledge and expertise in assessment and health planning to build relationships, collaborate with students, families, and other disciplines to lead change in the health and education of the future of our students. This year’s theme, “School Health: Where do all the pieces fit?” reminds us that the unique practice of school nursing provides opportunities to facilitate the connection between important family, school, and community partners achieving a clear picture of how all the pieces fit together- providing health services seamlessly within educational settings. Diverse partners from the fields of mental health, social work, dentistry, and nursing will engage participants recognizing the opportunities and strategies that provide all the pieces for school health professionals to begin placing for a colorful 2016-2017 school year.

Objectives
By the conference conclusion, participants should be able to:
1. Examine changes in the healthcare system that promote the role of the school health professional as a liaison between the schools and the community.
2. Identify potential threats to health and safety in the school setting and the strategies to employ, prepare, mitigate and respond to preserve the physical and emotional well-being of schools and the community.
2. Recognize how attitude and approach to challenges can positively or negatively impact the workplace and job satisfaction of school health professionals.
3. Identify the role of the school health professionals in the surveillance, prevention, and management of chronic, acute, and infectious diseases.
5. Review common health conditions in pediatric and adolescent populations and strategies for responding and managing chronic and urgent health needs with health care and education partners.
6. Compare current personal and professional school health professional practices with evidence-based practices to design a plan to incorporate interdisciplinary partners in improving health and education outcomes for school populations and communities.

“Beyond Our Office Door: School Nursing in the 21st Century”

The health care climate is changing with emphasis on providing health and wellness care where people live, work, learn and play. While the concept of community health may be new to other disciplines, school and community health is our home. School nurses have been caring for students in the community since the beginning of the 20th Century when Lina Rogers became the first school nurse in New York City. In the 21st Century, students and families benefit from our emphasis on prevention, the education we provide and the work we do to maintain the health of students in our school and communities. This Keynote will focus on the changes in healthcare delivery and the role of the school nurse using the framework of 21st Century School Nursing Practice.

Thursday, July 21, 2016

Keynote Speakers, 8:30 am—10:00 am
Rachel Sisson, MS, Director, Bureau of Family Health, Kansas Department of Health & Environment; Elaine Johannes, PhD, Associate Professor & Extension Specialist—Youth Development, School of Family Studies & Human Services, Kansas State University
“Better Together: Collaborating to Improve the Health of Children and Adolescents”

The Kansas Department of Health and Environment (KDHE) Bureau of Family Health recently completed a comprehensive statewide needs assessment to determine priorities for programmatic efforts in Maternal and Child Health (MCH) over the next five years (2016-2020). KDHE is committed to fostering a community collaborative approach that is focused on improving the health and well-being of the MCH populations in Kansas, and schools are critical partners working directly with children and youth. This session will highlight the Kansas MCH priorities for children and adolescents, including children and youth with special health care needs. Participants will receive information on strategies to support MCH priorities through school activities and local partnerships, especially as it relates to advancing child and adolescent health efforts in partnership with communities and families. In addition, participants will learn what Kansas teens think are the pressing health issues impacting adolescents and their recommendations for improved health.

Closing Keynote Speaker, 10:15 am—12:00 pm
Joe Coles, MS, Educational Consultant, Coles Consulting Services
“Well Done is Greater than Well Said!”

The pieces fit best in an organization that serves others! We are in a world where people just “talk” about what they are going to do, rather than take action. This session will give us better ideas on how to serve others through our actions rather than our talk! ! Selfishness is among us all. We have to work to become more “selfless,” and the first step is to “walk” more than “talk.” Great leaders and teammates don’t just impact you today; they impact you for the rest of your life! To do this we have to be accountable! We not only hold ourselves accountable, but we help hold others accountable. Building relationships and trust is a key to accountability! When we take action the pieces naturally come together.

A. The ABCs of Suicide Risk and Prevention: Social Alienation, Perceived Burdensomeness, and the Acquired Capability to Enact Lethal Self-Injury

Presenter: Christopher West, MSW, Administrator, Behavioral Health Service Line

Rising suicide rates among young adults are an increasing concern across the country. The interpersonal-psychological theory of suicide proposes that three necessary factors are needed to die by suicide: feelings that one does not belong with other people, feelings that one is a burden on others or society, and an acquired capability to overcome the fear and pain associated with suicide. This discussion looks at the application of this theory to school settings and peer interactions in hopes that early identification and intervention can help prevent suicidal behaviors.
