Kansas has contracted with three new health plans, or managed care organizations (MCOs), to coordinate health care for nearly all Medicaid beneficiaries. “DSM-5 Changes in Autism Spectrum Definition: opportunity for school nurses to grow”
Valarie Kerschen, MD, Pediatrician, KU Pediatric Faculty Subspecialty Clinic

The Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders guides the diagnosis of “mental” disorders such as autism spectrum. The diagnostic criteria published in the new 5th edition includes several important modifications. These changes in the definition of autism provide an opportunity for school nurses to review the broad variations of symptoms in autism spectrum and the related medical treatments. This presentation will encourage growth of the school nurses’ knowledge base of the medicines used in treatment of such symptoms and implications for the school setting. An influential role of the school nurse, as a member of the treatment team, is exchange of significant information between the medical and education professionals working with children with autism spectrum. Specific examples will be discussed.

“Living & Leading with Laughter: Uncovering Your Spark”

Diane McMillen, PhD, Associate Professor, Washburn University, Department of Human Services

This address will introduce an “inside-out” approach to understand how people create their experience of life. It is a hopeful vision of what is possible for individuals, families, communities, and the helping fields. This approach focuses on people’s innate health and wisdom, draws out people’s internal resilience, transforms people by shifting their perspective, and enhances family and community life. This will be an opportunity to remind ourselves that we already have everything inside us we need to be more peaceful, more clear-headed, more content and less stressed. This is an innate and limitless capacity that, when found, unfurls, and we become less affected by problems and more productive and satisfied with our work.
